"THE FAITH OF THE TRENCHES"

The International Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 29 is Review - "What It Means to Be a Christian."-I. John iii:1-24.

One curious impression gained by first-hand observers of the attitude of the soldiers toward religion is that a surprisingly large proportion of the men confounded religion with a few picayune, man-made rules which really have nothing to do with religion. Over and over again, as I rode with Caundian and British soldiers on top of London busses or sat with them in restaurants and Y. M. C. A. huts and elsewhere, and as I talked with American boys in France, from fair Brittany clear up to the devastated regions of the trenches, I ran across this prevalent notion that being religious means abstinence from tobacco, cards, dancing and theater-going! Splendid, reverent fellows, who have entered into the very fellowship of the cross, say apologetically that they "are not religious, you know"—though they have given their very lives to God and have come to a vital knowledge of the Savior.

They are "not religious" because, I's got to follow what I's seen,
Till this old carcass dies,
For I daren't face in the land o' grace
The sorrow ov those eyes.
There sin't no throne, and there sin't no

given their very lives to God and have come to a vital knowledge of the Savior.

They are "not religious" because, forsooth, they play cards in the frenches, and go to the theater if they get a chance, and smoke cigarettes. In their subfimely unconscious nobility of soul they do not understand that the preachers and deacons and elders and stewards who used to talk so complacently about "doubtful amusements" are now sitting at the feet of our soldiers to be taught what they have learned about the recility of religion as they have faced death in France. We have faced death in France.

have learned how to discard incidentals and to hold in new proportion the central and unchanging integrities.

First, for some things the soldier's faith is not. It is not pious phraseology; the army puts the taboo on "the language of Canaan." Nor is it a spirit of superiority; pharizalsm has suffered a heavy mortality in this war. Priggishness and prudishness, posing and pretending, quickly perish in the army. There is no "goodiness" or paraded self-righteousness tolerated. Soldiers do not let their religion withdraw them from comradeship with their follows. Their faith is not so anaemic that it cannot stand the blasts of the open air and of real life. As already in dicated, it is not a matter of detailed rules and regulations. "Where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty" is one of the New Testament words upon which the religion of the men in the trenches is a continuous commentary.

Positively, trench religion is faith in God, a great God, supreme and intelligent in His present doings, but past finding out in all His ways. There is no unbelief among the soldiers Men facing death have no time for cheap cynicism and rideful athelam. Soldiers believe in God, whose other name is Love. There is a new, arrange, deep reverence among the soldiers Men facing death have no time for cheap cynicism and rideful athelam. Soldiers believe, without attenting to understand. They freely disregard much conventional teaching.

"Our padre were a solemn bloke,
We called 'im dismal Jim:
It fairly gave ye t'bloomin' creeps
To sit and 'ark nt 'im.
When we were on wi' Judgment Day,
Abaht that great white throne,
And 'ow each chap would 'ave to stand
And answer on 'is own.
And i'e tried to charnce 'is arm,
And 'ide a single sin.
There'd be the angel Gabriel,
Wi' books to do 'im in.
'E 'ad it all writ dahn, e said,
And nothin' could be 'id.
'E 'ad it all—in black and white,
And 'e would take no kid.
And every single idle word
A soldier charnced to say
'E'd 'ave it all thrown back at 'im
I' court on Judgment Day."

By way of illustration, the soldier tells the tale of Billy Briggs, who tripped up in a trench one, bad night while carryin; tea to the men, a man with uncommon skill in profanity, and who later was killed by a shell;

"E turned the black night hive,
And I guess the Angel Gabriel

Well, 'ow would poor old Bill go on
When 'e stood all alone,
And 'ad to 'ear that tale read out

It ain't what God would do:

Then Tommy dreamed one night that he was dead:

"I seemed to stand alone beside
A solemn kind o' sea;
Its waves they got in my inside
And touched my memory.
And dry by day, and year by year,
My life came back to me.

My life came back to me.

And there before me Someone stood.
Just lookin' dahn at me.
And still be'ind 'Im moaned and moaned'
That everlasting sea.
I couldn't speak, I felt as though
'E 'ad me by the throat.
'Twere like a drownin' fellah feels
Last moment 'e's afloat.
And 'E said nowt, 'E just stood still,
For I dunno 'ow long:
It seemed to me like years and years,
But time out there's all wrong.
What was 'E like' you're askin' now;
Can't word it anyway.
'E just were 'Im, that's all I knows;
There's things as words can't say;
It seemed to me as though 'Is face
Were millions rolled in one;
It never changed, yet always changed,
Like the sea beneath the sun.
Twere all men's face, yet no man's face.
And it seemed to say in silent speech:
'Ye did 'em all to Me.
'The did'y things ye did to them,
'The filth ye thought was fine,
'Ye did 'em all to Me.' It said.
For all their souls were mine.'
All eyes were in 'Is eyes—all eyes. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp an rub it in gently with the finger tips.

De this tonight, and by morning. it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most, if not all, of you dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter, how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, sliky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—(Adv against the Phillstine army. In the southwestern arm of the plain King Josish was defeated and slain by the Egyptian army. Holofernes set up his camp on the Plain of Esdraelon. So did Pompey, and Mark Antony, and Titus. Near Mount Tabor Vespasian in the year 67 A. D. routed the Jewish patriots with great slaughter. "The last significant campaign of the Crusades took place when, one after another, the Christian strongholds on the edges of this plain were captured by the Saracen army under Sa'adin. Six hundred years later east and west again met on the historic battlefield, when Napoleon Bonaparte was victorious over the Turks, though the victory was won by such great cost that he had to retreat to Ancre and give up his ambitious dreams of rivaling Alexander the Great as the conqueror of Asia."
